Mentored Learning

Meet training objectives and increase productivity through a flexible, focused and fast approach to learning.

Quality training is imperative to the success of any organization, but extended time away from the office can take employees out of corporate momentum, especially when they're really needed most. New Horizons Mentored Learning was developed by industry professionals to provide a method of training that combines the least amount of time away from the office, with the most time dedicated to learning what they need to know.

The Mentored Learning Approach

Mentored Learning students will take a pre-assessment to determine their specific training needs. From there, training is done at the pace they are most comfortable, using a comprehensive approach to reinforce learning. This proven process features one-on-one mentoring, multimedia online courses, and authorized vendor courseware to ensure proper skill development.

Additionally, with Mentored Learning, students have their own networked environments, which enable mentors to manage hands-on-lab exercises that mirror the professional environment. After each course, a post-assessment is completed to help gauge return on investment and productivity enhancements. Students have the opportunity to move on to the next course – even on the same day.
